

Still no health professionals act

St. John's — The Liberals want to know what's holding up a proposed health professionals act which would cover occupations such as midwives and acupuncturists.

Liberal Leader Yvonne Jones told the House of Assembly Monday government promised to introduce legislation during this session.

Health Minister Jerome Kennedy said a draft of a bill exists, but consultations with the groups, which will fall under the new act, are ongoing.