Autism Service to Get Attention in Legislature May 27, 2009

The House of Assembly will debate a private member's resolution from the Opposition this afternoon surrounding autism services. Opposition Leader Yvonne Jones says autism spectrum disorder is on the rise, affecting 1 in 132 children in this province. She says the lifelong costs of assistance can be greatly reduced by early diagnosis and adequate supports. Currently provincial services for autistic children are covered until the age of 6 years. Jones says the resolution will call on government to extend those services to all children in the province.
