Opposition Seeks Answers on Cancer Care Improvements

The Opposition is looking for an update on improvements to cancer care in the province. Leader Yvonne Jones says the medical community has been speaking out about the lack of colo-rectal cancer screening and it's been 7 months since there was an update on implementation of the Cameron Inquiry recommendations. She says at that time only one of the recommendations had been fully implemented. Health Minister Jerome Kennedy stressed that improving the province's colo-rectal screening program is a priority and large investments have been made to improve the cancer care system overall.
