AG's Report Evidence Williams Government is Frivolous: Opposition

The Opposition Finance Critic for the province calls the Auditor General's report evidence the current administration is frivolous. Kelvin Parsons says government refuses to recognize that a lack of due diligence and mismanagement is creating significant problems in programming right across the government. He says the report reveals systemic neglect. He says no one is in charge to make sure the rules are being followed. He says the problems found in this year's Auditor General reports are the same that were flagged in last year's report. Parsons says it seems no one in the administration pays attention to what the Auditor General has to say. He says there isn't anyone in place to make sure rules are being followed.
