Opposition Not Impressed Over Exploration Results

Opposition politicians aren't ready to sing a song of prosperity on the Northern Peninsula just yet. Nalcor announced yesterday what they see as good results of their oil exploration program off Parsons Pond, but Liberal Leader Yvonne Jones is skeptical. The fact that Nalcor reached the desired depth of the well doesn't mean a whole lot to her. She says grade and quantity are the important things as people in the area always knew there was oil. She would prefer to see the oil companies do the exploration, not Nalcor.
