Jones Wonders if Government is Ready for a Spill

More in the legislature today about oil spills and the threat of a spill. Liberal Yvonne Jones wonders if the authorities are ready to handle an oil spill in Placentia Bay. Fishermen are worried about the potential as are some area mayors. A report suggests that a spill of about 10,000 barrels in the industrialized bay can be expected sometime in the next thirty years. Environment Minister Charlene Johnson noted that Jones should be asking those questions of the federal government.
