Fire Safety in Health Care Facilities to be Debated in House

March 12, 2008

The legislature will debate a private members resolution today, focusing on fire safety in government run health care facilities. It comes on the heels of a government directive to private personal care homes, to have sprinkler systems installed or close their doors. It has since been revealed a number of government run facilities housing critical and acute care patients are also without sprinkler systems. Opposition Leader Yvonne Jones says while they agree with the life saving measures, it is a blatant double standard on the part of the Williams administration.
