Concerns Over Dialysis Unit on Northern Peninsula; Jones
 July 4, 2008

The Opposition is raising concerns about the temporary shutdown of the new dialysis unit in St. Anthony due to a nursing shortage in the area. Leader Yvonne Jones says patients requiring treatment are forced to travel to other areas of the province. The St. Anthony satellite dialysis unit, opened last December, had been operating with only two nurses instead of the originally recommended four. Jones says one of those has been on sick leave since February and the other nurse is taking two weeks vacation leave. Jones says new patients have contacted her office frustrated that they cannot return home for dialysis service and instead have to stay in Corner Brook and St John's, away from family and friends and incurring great expense.
