Opposition Leader Concerned About Labrador Study
 October 7, 2008

The Leader of the Opposition says the coast of Labrador needs its diesel generated energy to be replaced, not complemented. Yesterday government announced a plan to conduct a study in coastal communities to determine if alternate sources of energy can be used to complement diesel generation in the region. Yvonne Jones says burning diesel to generate electricity is costly and damaging to the environment. Jones says there are existing small scale hydro developments that could serve the needs of the population.
